Secret Garden Tour of La Jolla

New Exhibition

In the 1920s and 1930s, the automobile and electric streetcar encouraged the development of suburbs such as Barber Tract, La Jolla Hermosa, the Muirlands, and La Jolla Shores. Beach cottages gave way to the work of the architects who adapted historical styles to modern sensibilities, creating uniquely regional designs in Spanish Revival, Moorish, English Tudor, and early Ranch styles - today considered as "landmarks" of design. From Jazz Age to Our Age examines how the early subdivisions built on the outskirts of the village continue to define neighborhoods, street patterns, and historic architecture. It features thirty-five designated homes and celebrates the design, craftsmanship, and values that first shaped La Jolla neighborhoods. Also featured: Cows on the Beach 1906 - 2016 with original images by Herbert R. Fitch in 1906 and Philipp Scholz Ritterman in 2016, these photographs celebrate the early history of La Jolla Shores as a dairy farm.

Funding for this exhibition generously provided by Robert and Barbara Agdern, Raul and Lisa Albanez, Leonard and Susan Comden, Ann Craig, the Debra Carroll and Donald Duford Family Foundation, John and Diane Kane, Kenneth and Kathleen Lundgren, Laura DuCharme Conboy & John Peek | Peek Brothers Painting, Inc.

Curated by Dr. Seonaid McArthur with the assistance of Dr. Molly McClain, Dr. Diane Kane, and Reena Racki AIA. Our appreciation to Nick Agelidis, Tony Crisafi AIA, and James Rega. Special thanks to the owners of Landmark Homes for preserving a valuable part of La Jolla's heritage.
